THE documents comprised in the following Catalogue consist of the title deeds and leases of the estates belonging to All Souls' College, with letters and legal papers referring to them; charters of kings, and injunctions of archbishops, with papers and correspondence concerning the internal affairs of the College; and lastly, the accounts of the annual receipts and expenditure.

The original treasury was the tower over the gateway, in which 'plate and other goodes' were kept in 'twoe chests'¹ during the wardenship of Hovenden, and were annually examined by the warden and officers. The yearly surplus, after the payment of the College expenses, was laid up in the same place, and it appears from memoranda of evidence sent up to London for legal purposes, that the archives were also kept in the tower. They were removed in the last century to rooms which were probably built expressly to receive them, and are there stowed away in presses all made after the room was built, with the exception of a handsome oaken cabinet in the upper room, on one of the doors of which is written by the hand of Warden Hovenden, 'Confectum 1582, R. Hovenden, custode.' The rolls and books of accounts, which begin certainly in 1443, (if not earlier, as there are several rolls without dates,) are deposited in another room by themselves.

During Hovenden's wardenship, the deeds in the archives were numbered, and catalogues made of them on paper rolls. These were covered with leaves from manuscripts, which once, no doubt, stood on the shelves of the College Library, but were found to be comparatively useless after the change in studies produced by the Reformation. At this period the College was involved in heavy lawsuits about their lands at Whadborough and elsewhere, which accounts for the care taken in cataloguing the title deeds.

The condition in which the archives were found, at the commencement of this work, was on the whole satisfactory. Neither the windows of the room nor the doors of the presses were proof against dust, which had accumulated to such an extent in some of the drawers, that on opening them, the contents were completely concealed by a thick black layer, but when this was removed and the outsides of the documents cleaned, the insides were generally found to be clean, and the ink still black and clear. This was more especially the case with the older deeds, for the quality of vellum and ink gradually deteriorated as the world grew older. Very few documents, either charters or letters, were found illegible or rotten from damp. The state of the account books was not quite so satisfactory. Several buttery books had lost their covers, and the leaves were found lying in a heap half rotten, and among them the bursar's book for 1450, thirteen years after the foundation of the College. This is the earliest of the series, which is tolerably complete up to 1645, when their place is taken by the steward's books. One case of mutilation is much to be regretted, that of a book¹ containing inventories of chapel furniture, and of the books in the library from the foundation of the College till Hoveden's time. About half the book has been destroyed, apparently by burning, but it is possible that some of the information contained in the lost portion may be found in the other inventory of 1585, also mentioned on page 416, and in the draft inventories and roll mentioned at p. 393.

The presses in the archive room are divided into drawers marked with the name of some college estate or of some class of documents, and these are in many cases sub-divided into partitions, similarly marked. In this catalogue care has been taken to preserve the original arrangement as nearly as possible, consistently with arranging each division of documents in chronological order; and the headings of the divisions of the catalogue are taken from the labels on the drawers. A considerable portion of the correspondence and papers was found in bundles, with endorsements mostly of the time of Wardens Gardiner and Niblett. These bundles have usually been catalogued separately, and loose papers inserted among them in their proper places.

The lands which the College held at, or soon after, its foundation were at Alberbury in Shropshire; Crendon, Foxcote, Morton, and Padbury in Buckinghamshire; Edgeware, Kingsbury, Harlesden, and Willesden in Middlesex; Googy Hall, Hope All Saints, Ivychurch, Brenset, Halstow, Horsham, Boywurth, Newenton, Reynham, Hertlepe, Wade, Bobbing, Deptling, Scotney, Bleching, Okeholt, Lyde, Promhill, Upchurch, and the Priory of Romney, in Kent; Lewknor, Aston's Eyt, and the town of Oxford; the Priors of St. Clere and Llangenith in South Wales; Salford in Bedfordshire; and Weedon Pinkeney, and Whadborough in Northamptonshire. Many of these estates were purchased by Archbishop Chichele or his executors, surrendered to Henry VI., and then granted by him under the Great Seal to the College. Among the Foxcote deeds is a receipt for 1,000*l.* paid by Chichele to Henry VI., which is perhaps the purchase money for the alien priories, which he presented to the College. Other property has been acquired by purchase or gift at various times down to the present century.

The title deeds in many cases give the descent of the land from the fourteenth century, while in some they go back to the thirteenth and those of Salford and Whadborough to the twelfth. Some of the undated Alberbury deeds may, perhaps, lay claim to the same antiquity. The earliest dated deeds are a grant by Roger of Salford to Walter Rufus in the year 1189, and the charter of exemption granted by King John to the friars of Grandemont in 1203, to which a fragment of the King's great seal is still attached.¹ There are a few undated deeds of a still earlier date, of which the letter from Henry II. to the Bishop of Lincoln² in favour of the Priory of Launde; the grant of Whadborough by the same king to Fulk Fitzwarin, the hero of the French romance which bears his name; and the letter from William of Anjou to King John,³ are the most interesting. The last is extremely curious, as letters from private persons of this date are of the highest rarity. The William of Fougeres mentioned in this letter was a member of the family which founded the Abbey of Savigny, in Normandy, and he is referred to in the patent roll of 8 John as being patron of the church of Tuiford. The local deeds are a mine of information for county and family history, and some use has already been made of them. Dugdale prints one of the Alberbury charters in his Monasticon,¹ and Nichols' Leicestershire² contains several others relating to the Priory of Launde, which were communicated to the author by the Rev. Mr. Williams of Eaton, from the MSS. of Mr. Dodsworth.

While speaking of these houses, it is worth while to call attention to the fact that Robert de Norhampton, who is mentioned as prior of Launde on p. 262, is not included in Dugdale's list (Mon. Angl. vi. 187), which gives no name between those of Thomas Frysseby and John Lancaster, the last prior, who was pensioned off with 60*l.* a year at the Suppression. The names of the priors and correctors of Alberbury, which occur in the Alberbury and Whadborough deeds, are not given either in Dugdale or in Eyton's History of Shropshire. Similarly, a gap at the year 1274, in the list of Mayors of Oxford, in Sir J. Peshall's edition of Wood's 'Ancient and Present State of the City of Oxford,' is supplied by the name of William le Especer, who is mentioned in an undated document on p. 152. The year 1278 is also vacant in the list, but as Philip de Eu appears in the deed as bailiff, its date is probably anterior to his holding the office of Mayor in 1276.

The correspondence includes signed letters from eight sovereigns of England, all of them being requests to the College for favours, either on behalf of the writer or of some dependent. Edward IV. desires Warden Stokes to grant a lease to one Richard Harowedon, which was complied with. Henry VII. asks Warden Hobbes for a loan for the invasion of Scotland, which was apparently refused. Henry VIII. applies to the College for a loan of 100*l.* for the invasion of France, whether successfully or not the archives do not show. This letter has lost its signature. Queen Elizabeth presses the College to grant a lease of their woods in Middlesex to Lady Jane Stafford, who is supported by several great personages as well as by the queen, and even offers

Hoveden a bribe of 100*l.* as an additional inducement to consent.¹ The correspondence on this subject includes letters from Lord Burleigh, Sir Walter Raleigh, Lord Hunsdon, and other courtiers. The tone of Raleigh's letter is characteristic of the man whose 'næve was that he was damnable proud,' but he expresses some sort of obligation to Hoveden. The William Rawley who was bursar in 1596 may have been a relative of his. Among the Lansdowne MSS.² in the British Museum, are the original letters from Hoveden and the College to Lord Burleigh, of which the drafts are noticed in this catalogue at pp. 284 and 285, Nos. 79, 84, and 92; and also a copy of the Reasons (No. 77). In another volume of the same collection³ there is a paper headed 'The State of All Soln Colledge for expenses and receiptes these xv. yeres past, and what stead their woodes have stooode them in in Midelsex,' in which it is shown that, between 1572 and 1586, the expenses frequently exceeded the receipts, and that the balance was made up by the sale of the woods. This demand of Queen Elizabeth's was refused, and so was the recommendation of James I. to the College, to elect Dr. Beaumont Warden. Of the two letters from the King on this subject, only one is an original. This incident was afterwards referred to by Archbishop Sancroft as a precedent for the College to refuse the application of a candidate for a fellowship who had surreptitiously obtained a dormant mandate in his favour. Charles I., during his stay at Oxford, writes to ask for a loan of the College plate, and this request was acceded to, as appears by the receipts of the King's Commissioners, which were found carefully preserved among the 'Jocalia,' although they never were of the value which was hoped when they were first put away. The only other royal letters are from Charles II. and James II. The former recommends Peter Prideaulx as a fellow, the latter Leopold Finch as Warden, and both recommendations were successful. As the Archbishops of Canterbury were the visitors of the College, there are letters from nearly all of them after the time of Warham, as well as one from Cardinal Bourchier. Laud's letter is interesting as having been written during his imprisonment in the Tower.

The chief topics of the correspondence during the eighteenth century, are the attempt of the fellows to resist the statute enjoining the taking of Holy Orders, and the questions of Founder's kin, and the Warden's vote at the elections. The difficulty about Holy Orders had really been on the tapis for some time before there is any notice of it in the archives. There is still extant a correspondence¹ between Hoveden, Archbishop Parker, and Lord Burleigh, about a Mr. Henry Wood, who had obtained letters from Queen Elizabeth 'to continue as physician not entering the ministry,' although 'his time was expired to be minister or leave the College.'

Hoveden's reluctance to grant this indulgence is chiefly based upon Wood's personal character, but Parker writes to Burleigh in very much the same tone that Warden Gardiner used long after in similar circumstances. He says: 'Indede the saide Wood is stept in a manifest perjurie to sue for any dispensations agaynst the founder's ordinance, willing them all to be inclyned to be preistes and at convenient tyme to take the same order. They be so moche offended now with the ministerye, that of fortie suche fellowes in the house, there are but two preistes, and whether this be a good example to the Universitie for men to runne in open perjuries, and whether it be good to the governaunce, that so few preistes and preachers (specially in the Universitie) shoulde be, I leave that to her majesties consideration and your wisdome. Yf her highnes will take it upon her conscience to breake suche ordinance, I referr it to her majestie. Beside this cause touched, I se more inconveniences that will followe bothe in this and in other Colleges, if this be wonne by importunitye, but as for myself, I cannot beare with it in reason, prayinge your lordship not to be offended withe this my writinge.' Warden Gardiner was especially harassed by continual attempts to evade this Statute, and to annul it by Act of Parliament. A bundle of papers² on the subject is endorsed by him with a severe reflection on Archbishop Tenison for complicity in 'the ruin brought on the faculty of Divinity and other discipline of the College.'

Among the Miscellanea, there will be found some curious inventories of the plate and vestments in the chapel, which once possessed a tooth of St. John the Baptist and a piece of the true cross, the objects of the adoration of the pilgrims who worshipped there on Relic Sunday and All-Souls Day. These relics do not appear to be mentioned in the correspondence about the 'Monuments of Superstition' in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, nor does Professor Burrows refer to them in his 'Worthies of All Souls.' It is probable they had been already destroyed during the reign of her father.

The crumpled leaf from a service book, with the names of benefactors, was no doubt torn out when the mass books were given up after the long struggle with the Commissioners, which Professor Burrows describes in his sixth chapter.

Among the seals attached to the charters, there are some very fine specimens of mediæval work, both ecclesiastical and heraldic. The seal of Archbishop Chichele, of which there are two or three examples, bears two swans as supporters, confirming the statement in Harris's History of Kent, quoted by Professor Burrows, and settling a point about which there has been some controversy.

285. The College tenants of Padbury to the warden [Sheldon] and the College:—Sir Richard Minshull has endeavoured to supplant them in their estates by rendering them enemies to the College, and charging them with being rebels to the king. The loss of their goods and liberties is a proof of their loyalty. Not one of them ever armed against his prince, or refused his taxes for his garrisons. They have always conformed to the established religion and the laws. Beg the College to show them favour Signed by 18 of the tenants

Three papers
1587. 4 Aug. 74. Sir Thomas Heneage to Hoveden:—Though a stranger, advises him to take good heed that his answer to Her Majesty is to her satisfaction, and that without delay; otherwise it will be to the prejudice of himself and the College. The Court
Signed. P. 1. Add. Endd.
75. Beaumont to Mr. Vice-Chamberlain [Heneage]:—Opened his letter in Hoveden's absence, and it cannot be answered till he returns Draft. P. 1. Endd.
1587. 15 Aug. 76. Sir Walter Raleigh to Hoveden:—His excuses are deemed very frivolous by the Lord Treasurer. The Queen greatly disdained to write twice to subjects of their quality for a matter so reasonable, and desired the treasurer to admonish them presently to perform the contents of her former letters, or answer here in person. However the company escape, the burden of this contempt will light on Hoveden. Having been in some sort beholden to him, wishes him to do that willingly which otherwise he will be forced to yield to. The Court
Signed. P. 1. Add. Endd.
77. Reasons why All Souls' College may not demise their woods in Middlesex 1587. 16 Aug. 78. Burleigh, Lord Treasurer to All Souls' College:—Has read their objections to granting a lease to Lady Stafford. The Queen thinks them very frivolous, and desires them either to grant the lease or repair to the Court. Theobalds

1587. 20 Aug. 83. [Hoveden] to Sir Walter Raleigh:—Hopes he will not make himself a party against them, but rather further their just excuses with the Queen. Oxford
- 1 Sept. Hoveden and James to [Whitgift]:—Thank him for his letters to the Lord Treasurer in their behalf, in consequence of which his lordship has caused Lady Stafford to divert her suit, and licensed them to depart. The Court Drafts on the same sheet
1587. 21 Aug. 84. All Souls' College to Burleigh:—Are surprised that Lady Stafford's suit is renewed, as the Archbishop and Walsingham approved of their reasons, and the latter undertook to deliver them to Her Majesty last July. Repeat their reasons 1587. 85. Expenses of the journey of the Warden and Francis James to 2 Sept. London, 21 Aug. to 2 Sept. Pp. 3 1587. 86. Sir Thomas Heneage to the College:—The Queen takes their 30 Sept. bold denial of her request in Lady Stafford's favour in very evil part. She desires them to give an absolute answer to Heneage. If they yield, the Queen desires them to make a lease of the woods to herself, similar to that late made to Christopher Hovenden. She will then hear the reasons on both sides, and dispose thereof as may seem best Signed. P. 1. Add. Endd.

87. All Souls' College to Queen Elizabeth:—Have received Mr.
Vice-Chamberlain's letters, and beseech her not to press them to demise these woods Copy. P. 1. Endd.

1587. 89. All Souls' College to Burleigh:—Are grieved at the renewal 10 Oct. of Lady Stafford's suit after the great pains that Burleigh took therein. The Queen is informed that they have acted rather from wilfulness than from necessity. Beg him to commend the equity of their cause to her Copy. P. 1 1587. 90. All Souls' College to Heneage:—Mention grants of leases, &c., 11 Oct. made at the Queen's desire, to show that they are not undutiful. Beg him to favour them in the present matter
Copy. P. 1
- „ 91. Expenses of the Warden, Mr. Dow, and Mr. Spurway, going to London to answer Sir Thos. Heneage Pp. 2. Endd.
1587. 92. All Souls' College to Burleigh:—Heneage tells them that he 17 Oct. cannot say the Queen is well pleased with their answer; but he sees no cause for their longer stay at Court, and leaving a catalogue of all their names, they may depart till they hear again from the Queen. Beg him to pacify her displeasure, and show her his opinion of the whole cause Copy. P. 1
- 1587-8. 93. Heneage to Hovenden:—Lady Stafford does not surcease 12 Jan. her suit, and complains that they refuse to give her anything towards her charges. Has been informed that he said to Mr. Thornborowe that the Queen's letter should take no place in Lady Stafford's behalf. Advises him to satisfy her in some manner, that she may surcease her clamorous complaints. Greenwich P. 1. Add. Endd.
- 1587-8. 94. [Hovenden] to Heneage:—Must defer his answer about Lady 25 Jan. Stafford until he may confer with his company. Never

Copy. P. 1.
1593. 97. William Watts to Hoveden:—Concerning the conditions of 18 Nov. his purchase of woods at Wappenham. Blacksley
Signed. P. 1. Add. Endd.

16 Nov. lege, that no window shall be made on the east of Whar-

12 Oct. will put an end to his right in the society within six months. Has 200*l.* at the service of the College, when they go about turning the hall in good earnest. Essex St.
P. 1. Add. Endd.
- 1728-9. 28. Dr. George Clarke to Warden [Niblett]:—Thinks great 1 Feb. reliance is to be placed in Sir Nathanael Lloyd's good inclinations to the College. Doubts not he will remit great part, if not all the principal at his death, if not before.
They talk of the king's going abroad, and that Parliament will rise by Easter. London Pp. 2. Endd.

- 1728-9. 29. Dr. Clarke to [Niblett]:—Is glad the College has not 8 Feb. refused Lloyd's proposal. Has complimented Dr. Dod on his intended benefaction, 'whenever we begin to turn our hall.' When he receives Townsend's second thoughts, will endeavour to get Hawksmoore's. Thinks it will be difficult to make a kitchen and leave a way to the stables, and that it will be necessary to see what Magdalen College will do about exchanging houses. If they will agree, a passage may be made through the next house to Clarke's. Remarks on Townsend's proposal to turn the hall and make a building at the end of it for 1,250*l*. London
Pp. 2. Endd.
- 1728-9. 30. Dr. Clarke to Niblett:—Remarks on Townsend's plan. It 22 Feb. will be troublesome to have meat and drink so far from the hall, where it is to be used, for there are too many stairs. Thinks there would be room for the buttery and kitchen in the building which is to answer the outward chapel. Has made a rough sketch to explain his meaning (not enclosed). London
Pp. 2. Endd.
1729. 31. Clarke to Niblett:—Hawksmoor and Townsend met yester-25 March day to look over a draft by the former for a new hall, buttery, and kitchen. Hopes Townsend will not think of asking more than 1,700*l*. London
Pp. 2. Endd.
1729. 32. Clarke to Niblett:—Account of a conversation with Mr.
10 April Gibson concerning Lord Wharton's estate. Thinks that 1,700*l*. can be raised among those who have been of the College. London
Pp. 2. Endd.
1729. 33. Clarke to Niblett:—It is unlucky that the College cannot 6 May lay hold of the occasion of turning the hall, &c., afforded by the kindness of Lloyd and Dod. Thinks only 800*l*. will be wanting to complete the design, and there are many persons who expect to be asked to contribute. London
Pp. 2. Endd.
1729. 34. Dr. Peirce Dod to Niblett:—The interest from the annuities 22 May is in his hands and ready to be paid. Anstis has asked for a list of Fellows since 1706. Essex St. P. 1. Add. Endd.
1729. 35. Dr. Peirce Dod to Niblett:—Will do anything he can in 23 Aug. this affair with Sir N. Lloyd. Is glad the College has closed with him. Essex St. P. 1. Add. Endd.
1729. 36. Estimate of the work now done in the new library 22 Dec.
- „ 37. Estimate of the painting and wire-work in the new library
- 1729-30. 38. Dr. Clarke to Niblett:—Hawksmoor has designed a little 27 Jan. cloister under the hall windows on the south side. Has thanked the Solicitor-General and Lord Trevor for their benefactions. Hopes the exchange with Magdalen College will be effected. Mr. Gibson believes that Lord Wharton's estate will pay all his debts. London Pp. 2. Endd.

- 1729-30. 39. Clarke to Niblett :—Suggests that the cloister on the south 30 Jan. side of the hall may be built upon the old wall at the south end of the present hall. Lord Trevor says that the archbishop has fixed a time for the College to answer the applications of Anstis and Bathurst. London
Pp. 2. Endd.
- 1729-30. 40. Clarke to Niblett :—Thinks that the prohibition moved for 10 Feb. by the College ought to be granted to prevent visitors interposing in matters in which it was never intended they should have anything to do. Townsend will wait upon Niblett with an estimate of the intended building. London
Pp. 2. Endd.
- 1729-30. 41. Dr. Clarke to Niblett :—Returns Townsend's proposals with 14 Feb. some queries. Remarks about employing the old materials in the new building. London Pp. 2. Endd.
42. Queries by Dr. Clarke, concerning the plans for the hall, &c., with answers by Niblett Pp. 4.
43. Queries about the hall in Niblett's hand, with answers. Endd. 'Answer to Dr. Clarke's queries'
- 1729-30. 44. Dr. Clarke to Niblett :—Suggestions about a room over the 19 Feb. passage between the hall and chapel, and about glazing the south windows in the hall. London Pp. 2. Endd.
- 1729-30. 45. Niblett to [Clarke] :—Requests him to advise with Mr.
2 March Hawksmoor or anyone else concerning Townsend's estimate. All Souls' Pp. 2. Endd.
- 1729-30. 46. Clarke to Niblett :—Has written to Hawksmoor about the 5 March estimate. Remarks about the designs for the door-cases. London Pp. 2. Endd.
- „ 47. Clarke to Hawksmoor :—Sends Townsend's drafts and the Thursday warden's letter. Remarks upon the drafts
Pp. 2. Endd.
- 1729-30. 48. Clarke to Niblett :—Finds some variations in the drafts 15 March of Hawksmoor and Townsend. The west end of the hall cannot be ordered as Hawksmoor proposes; for there is not carving of the old rail of the chapel enough remaining to make what he calls the poggiolo under a statue of the founder, and he did not know that we have a good picture of him to hang up in that place. Further remarks about the design. London Pp. 2. Add. Endd.
49. Variations and additions by Mr. Hawksmoor
In Clarke's hand. Pp. 2. Endd.
- 1729-30. 50. Clarke to Niblett :—Has sent the papers and designs. Hopes 16 March the endeavour to get a prohibition has not offended the archbishop. Hears that the Dean of Arches has expressed a good deal of resentment. London
Pp. 2. Endd.

1730. 51. Clarke to Niblett:—Thinks Townsend need not raise his 26 March price on account of alterations in the screen made by Hawksmoor. Hopes he intends a handsome door-case to the buttery, to make the west end of the hall over the wainscot answer the east end. The Navigation Bill is not so desirable to the university and city as was hoped.
London Pp. 2. Encl.

kin. Lambeth Signed. P. 1. Add.
1626. 7. Archbp. Abbot to All Souls' College :--Has been much 18 Oct. pressed to recommend young men for fellowships, but will not do so. Considers, however, that they are bound to prefer the kinsmen of their founder. Mr. Bathurst has shown him a pedigree attested by all the heralds, giving his descent from Chichele's brother. He has a son at the University, a towardly young man. Lambeth Signed. P. 1. Add.
1628. 8. Archbp. Abbot to Warden Astley :--Is satisfied that Thos.

1629. 10. Archbp. Abbot to Warden Astley :--Has received no answer

- 1632-3. 15. Archbp. Abbot to All Souls' College :--The feast of Christmas 2 Jan. drawing to an end, reminds him of the great outrage committed in the College last year, when the doors and gates were torn off. 'Civil men should never so far forget themselves, under pretence of a foolish mallard, as to do things barbarously unbecoming.' More persons have died lately in their College than in others. Advises humiliation and expiation. Young Digges and young Crofts are to be admitted as founder's kinsmen. Lambeth kin. Desires them to do this, if there is no just and statutable exception against it. The Tower

FOUNDER'S KIN.

1685. 19. Warden Jeames to Sancroft:—Remarks about the candidates 22 Oct. for the fellowships, Mr. Diggs, Mr. Bridges, and a son of the Earl of Lindsey. Thinks the latter will have a majority of 5 Nov. Digges, a founder's kinsman, Mr. Mapleton, the best scholar, and Mr. Barty, the Earl of Lindsey's son. The College desire to search the Herald's Office, and find what families are of the founder's kin. Mr. Finch produced a pedigree, drawn by one of the heralds, who told him that if that would not serve, he would give him one that should.

This makes the College jealous of admitting new names.
All Souls' College Copy. P. 1
1685. 22. Jeames to [Sancroft]:—Thanks for permission to divide 8 Dec. the surplus. The exception against the pedigrees of Digges and Bridges is because the persons from whom they descend are named Valentine Chiche and Philippa Chichley, who are called in former pedigrees Allan and Isabel. In Hovenden's time the College would not admit pedigrees upon the mere testimony of the heralds. All

- „ 152. J. Irish to [Tenison]:—At the general accounts, some expressed an opinion that, by the archbishop's late injunctions, the warden must be allowed no more than is mentioned in the statutes. Said he did not think the archbishop intended to deprive the warden of what his predecessors had, but they thought differently, and have refused him several emoluments enjoyed by his predecessors. Many things are allotted both to warden and fellows, about which the statutes are silent, and of which no man can give any account. A strict scrutiny into allowances will be impossible. - „ 156. Bettesworth to Gardiner:—The archbishop did not intend by his injunctions to make any innovation in the ancient styles, which have been allowed to the warden time out of mind; but he cannot allow of any new articles which have crept up within the memory of man. Doctors' Commons

1708. 206. [Gardiner to Archbp. Tenison]:—Will be obliged to allow 29 Nov. Dr. Bowes his livery
On the other side is a draft of a letter, dated Nov. 9, informing the archbishop of a devolution
- 9 Dec. 207. D. Grevile to [Gardiner]:—Gave the archbishop the College letter. When he saw it was in Latin he laid it aside, saying he was not good at extempore, and would take time to consider. 'When I delivered Dr. Bowes' proceedings he was in wrath, and said he knew Dr. Bowes was married as well as I knew what was a cat;' Bowes was a robber, and he would no longer be insulted; the College estate ought to be managed by bailiffs. London Pp. 2 1708. 208. Archbp. Tenison to Gardiner:—As some expenses in the accounts are questioned, he withholds his approbation of them. Every penny that Dr. Bowes takes after the statuteable time of grace is against good conscience. The warden does not pursue the intention of the founder if he is not watchful in such cases, but purely passive.
Hol. P. 1. Add. Endd.
1709. 209. Richard Bowes to Gardiner:—Has received his letter containing the archbishop's final answer to his business. The reason which his wife is represented as having given for the concealment of the marriage is an impudent lie. Reigate Pp. 2. Add.

- 1708-9. 210. W. Bromley to Warden Gardiner:—Sends a paper on the 17 Feb. above subject, which is not yet publicly circulated. It will soon be delivered at the door of the House, with an application for a Bill P. 1. Add.
- 1708-9. 211. W. Bromley to Warden Gardiner:—Expected this matter 22 Feb. would have been brought into the House of Commons to-day, but other business prevented it. Sir J. Stonehouse will drop his Bill P. 1. Add.

- 1708-9. 212. W. Bromley to Warden Gardiner:—Finds a great disposition 26 Feb. in those engaged in the matter of the College statutes to drop it. They now own it is on Gardiner's account that they have had thoughts of applying to Parliament for relief, and that if he would do what is reasonable, they would not prosecute the matter this session. They asked Bromley's mediation Pp. 2. Add.
- 1708-9. 213. Warden Gardiner to Archbp. Tenison:—Hears that some 2 March desperate men are about to solicit Parliament for an alteration in the statutes of colleges concerning taking Holy Orders. Begs the archbishop to give his assistance against this abominable design. Meredith, Blencowe, Littleton, and Dalton are the persons who openly solicit this matter Draft. P. 1
214. W. Bromley to Warden Gardiner:—The motion for the repeal of the statutes has been put off by other business. Some of those who solicit it proposed to me that if I can prevail with you to let the matter be considered as far as it concerns the College, they will forbear prosecuting it this session. Our best friends here think that, however unreasonable their attempt, they may prevail. Thursday night Pp. 2. Add.
215. Dodington Grevile to Warden Gardiner:—Did not receive his commands from Mr. Bromley till the end of the week. This design has been in agitation these three years. About that time ago Dr. Tindal came to him with fallacious arguments, which are now urged as reasons. Opposed it then, and does so now. Mr. Denton told Grevile he did not design to make his motion this session. If he had, is sure it would not have passed. Will assist in the Bill for the highways. If Gardiner will think of some method to make those four gentlemen easy, Littleton will undertake that the design of altering the statutes will be set aside Pp. 2. Add.
- 3 March 216. John Potter to Warden Gardiner:—The archbishop writes that he never saw the paper of Reasons till it had been dispersed over the town, and he believes it will die of itself. Christchurch P. 1. Add.
- 1708-9. 217. W. Bromley to Warden Gardiner:—Thinks the design of 3 March applying to Parliament is entirely laid aside. Some of both universities have been very active in opposing it, and have collected materials for a paper in answer to the Reasons.¹ Now it is dropped, they think it best to be silent P. 1. Add.

- [1708-9.] 218. Bromley to [Gardiner]:—Believes the Bill is dropt for this 5 March session. Advises that the instigators should not be told of their oaths, or otherwise irritated or provoked Draft. P. 1
- 1708-9. 219. Archbp. Tenison to Warden Gardiner:—Will by no means 5 March countenance the Bill he mentions in his letter. Thinks it will not be offered, and is confident it cannot pass. No man can foresee the consequences of such alterations, and therefore such dangerous experiments should never be tried the intended Bill, and another from Littleton to Joseph Girdler, serjeant-at-law, dated Feb. 27, 1708-9, asking him to support the Bill, which is only opposed by heads of colleges for their sinister purposes Pp. 2

- 1708-9. 223. John [Hough], Bp. of Lichfield and Coventry, to Warden 10 March Gardiner:—Is sorry for the vexation he meets with in the administration of his office. There is no reason to apprehend that the statute he at present asserts will be set aside by authority of Parliament. No one will have courage to move for leave to bring in a Bill till he has better reasons than those lately seen in print. All Souls' has less occasion for such a change than other colleges Hol. Pp. 2. Add.
- 1708-9. 224. W. Bromley to [Warden Gardiner]:—The attempt at repealing 12 March the statutes is not now talked of. The origin of the attempt is said to be a remark of a certain bishop that it would be better to have a dispensation from the kingdom than from the visitor Pp. 2
- 1708-9. 225. Warden Gardiner to Dr. Potter:—Desires him to thank the 18 March archbishop for his kind letter about the late design against archbishop is not at all angry with them, and that a bishop advised them to go to Parliament Draft. P. 1 1709. 226. Dr. Potter to [Gardiner]:—Thanked the archbishop, as 26 March Gardiner desired. He need not doubt his Grace's readiness to assist him in the due execution of the statutes. Lambeth

P. 1. Add.
1709. 227. W. Bromley to Warden Gardiner:—The session is at an end, 23 April and there is nothing to fear from any attempt at repealing the statutes. Mr. Littleton has given grave scandalum, punished, it should be for some other offence. The D. of 9 Dec. of holding his fellowship with the mastership of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. Hopes a good man as well as a righteous bridge eight weeks the whole year Pp. 2. Add.

1710. 319. Lloyd to Gardiner:—Understands the only clauses in the sta-29 Dec. tutes which affect him are that in the fellows' oath, *propter

- 1713-4. 326. Lloyd to Gardiner:—Hopes he has put the case of Trinity
